The Pulpit Buffoon. William Dugdale applied the "pulpit buffoon" to Hugh Peters 508-1600), the joke loving Puritan ergyman, whose puipit peculiarities ade him a notable figure during the nglish civil war, when he held the set of chaplain to the parliamentary my. Peters was a born jester, and he pulpit set no har to his broad hu mor and pungent witticisms—not al-mays in the best taste, as, for exam-ple, when turning the hourglass while p. eaching a long sermon he said, "Now, my friends, let us have another glass." His pulpit appeals were very effective in winning recruits to the parntary army, and when a town as to be taken by assault the storm-g parties were first stimulated to the ak by a rousing sermon from their aplain.

The Simplon Pass. The Simplon pass always has been great highway of travel from periand into Italy. It was used by Caesar and his legions as far back as 30 B. C., and, although Napoleon happened to use the St. Bernard pass, he recognised the superior importance of the Simplon and ordered a military d to be built over it to serve in fu re campaigns. It was begun in 1800, at before it was completed, in 1806, the fortunes of the battlefield led the eror elsewhere, so he never saw it. my ever crossed it. The Original Lovers' Leap Sappho's Leap was the name given to a white cliff or promontory ancient-ly called Leucadia, now Cape Ducato, the southern extremity of Santa faura, one of the Ionian islands. It was, so called because Sappho, the poetess, is reported to have thrown herself from this height into the sea. A criminal, with birds attached to him to break his fall, was thrown from the cliff at the annual festival of Apollo, and if he reached the water unburt he was picked up by boats placed there for that purpose. This is the rock from which, according to the story, lovers throw themselves in order to be free from the pangs of love.

The Man and the Place. "This John Doe must be a turrible bad feller," mused Maw Hoptoad. "He's allus in trouble. I see he's been indicted again. I wonder where he lives when he's to home?"

"I expect he lives in Effigy," chuckled Paw Hoptoad, "the place where so many are hung."-Houston Chronicle.

JAMES H. KELLY

Beware the Easy Shelter. Years are but a fool's measure for youth, which is divine. They bring caution more often than wisdom and a certain belief in the unreality of joy. A man is quickly disillusioned, which commonly means that he has set up his own idea of what things should be by the side of what things are and sulks forever at the result. He then commits the folly of becoming old and prefere existence to life. He clambers into one or other of the many shelters that line the way, curis up within and smiles pityingly at the young of all ages press ing on to some end, no matter what, alive to the beauty of the sky and the clouds and the birds and the trees alive even to the beauty to be seen in one another, breathing deeply of the air of strength, living and loving and be loved, until at last they are made on with nature. But the heart, like the liver, grows torpid without exercise; a gradual decay comes to the man in the shelter, a decay from which he is released, much against his will, by death. There are too many shelters.—Hugh de Selincourt

Anne Boleyn In Spain. After Henry VIII. divorced Cafharine of Aragon, the favorite daughter of Ferdinand and Isabella, and married Anne Boleyn there was intense disgust thereat in Spain, and to show their abhorrence they for years carried around Rooms and Bath, $1.50 per day and up annually in procession a huge alligator Rooms with Private Bath and Shower (la tarasca, which strictly means a sen pent), and out of the back of this animal sprang a female figure intended for Anne Boleyn. This figure they called the "Anavolena" ((Anne Boleyn, the "b" and "v" being almost inter changeable in Spanish). The idea, of her suffering was terrible and her body and face were swollen almost beyond recognition; had been in bed for six weeks and had eight physicians, but received no benefit until she tried Dr. Detchon's Relief for Rheumatism. It gave immediate relief and she was able to walk about in three days. I am sure it saved her life." Soid by Curils Pharmacy, 1149 Main St. cor. course, was Protestantism, personified SIDEWALKS cathedral, the most interesting one in Spain.—Notes and Queries.
